A statement of what is implied by the term eclectic physician, has been prepared by Dr. C. W. Brannon of Cincinnati. The statement, referring to the physician in attendance at the Ohio State Eclectic Medical Association convention here today and Wednesday, follows:

"An eclectic physician is one who has been adequately trained in the recognized fundamentals of modern scientific medicine, and has added thereto, the special knowledge of eclectic materia medica and therapeutics.

"He is unimpaired by dogma, and believes in independence of medical thought.

"He has developed and continues to contribute to the advancement of the eclectic section of American medicine, believing that progress never ceases. He is, however, guided by the evolved principles of specific diagnosis and specific medication, as an aid to the discriminating selection of remedial agents, which harmonize and synergize the use of the eclectic materia medica. He also accepts as available any proven therapeutic method from any reliable source.

"He subscribes and adheres to the approved code of ethics.

"He recognizes the humanitarian principles, upon which medicine is founded and accepts as his right and heritage all the splendid achievement of those who have gone before.

"He realizes that it is an obligation to contribute to the state of general knowledge, as well as a privilege to receive it from others. There are no secrets in the eclectic practice; all that is written is open to the entire medical profession.

"He would emphasize the study of materia medica with the idea of making medical therapeutics more accurate and reliable, kinder and safer, as a means of combating disease."

KIDNAPERS RELEASE GIRL; RANSOM PAID

Father Reports Incident to Philadelphia Police After Daughter Returns.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Authorities were called upon today to solve a daring daylight ransom kidnapping of which they were not apprised until 30 hours after its commission.

Meanwhile the victim's father, Nathan Gerson, a laundry owner, had paid $300 and procured his daughter's release, taking no chances that the four Negro abductors might make good a threat to kill her if he notified the police.

Paul Gerson, 19, was overpowered on the street near her home, dragged into an automobile, bound and gagged, and taken to a barn outside the city Saturday evening.

Sunday one of her captors telephoned her father, arranging a rendezvous and demanding $1,000 ransom. Yesterday morning Gerson handed over $300 and two hours later the girl was pushed from the kidnappers' automobile two blocks from home.

With his daughter safe, Gerson reported the occurrence to the police last night.

When Miss Gerson failed to return home Saturday night her parents reported her disappearance to police, but after the communication from the kidnappers they gave no further information until she was returned.

CITES OPPOSITION TO GOLDSBOROUGH BILL

Mills Sees Passage of Dollar Stabilization Act as Disturbing Influence.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—Secretary Mills informed the senate banking committee today that passage by the house of the Goldsborough dollar stabilization bill "was a disturbing factor both at home and abroad" and that the federal reserve board is unanimously opposed to it.

The secretary's letter was in response to a request that he comment on a senate bill by Senator Fletcher, Democrat of Florida, virtually identical with the Goldsborough measure passed by the house.

They provide that the federal reserve board and the secretary of the treasury restore the purchasing power of the dollar to the 1928 level by currency expansion.

"In my opinion it would not be possible for the government to carry out such a mandate," Secretary Mills wrote.

"Price levels are dependent upon a large number of factors that are beyond the control of the federal reserve system, the treasury department or any other agency of the government, and I do not believe that it would be wise to impose upon them a duty and a responsibility which they could not discharge.

"Such an attempt would tend to undermine the confidence of the people in the various agencies of the government, and the result would be unfortunate."

Grand Jury Launches Probe

NEW YORK, May 17.—Col. Henry Breckenridge, personal representative of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was the first witness to appear before the Bronx county grand jury which convened today to investigate the payment of $50,000 ransom to the supposed kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby.

Col. Breckenridge had not been subpoenaed, but appeared at the request of the district attorney. When he arrived at the grand jury room in the Bronx county courthouse, he told Assistant District Attorney Edward F. Breslin, who is presenting the case, he had some important matters to take care of and would like to get away as soon as possible.

As a result, instead of calling Dr. John F. Condon, Bronx mediator, who paid the ransom money to the supposed kidnappers, as the first witness, Breslin took Col. Breckenridge into the grand jury room.

Dr. Condon had arrived earlier with Al Reich, former pugilist, who acted as his bodyguard during the futile negotiations for the return of the baby. Others waiting in the ante-room with Dr. Condon were Milton Gaglio, who on at least one occasion acted as chauffeur for Dr. Condon; Max Rosenheim, owner of a Bronx restaurant, patronized by Dr. Condon, and Joseph Persons, believed to be the taxicab chauffeur who delivered a note from the alleged kidnappers to Condon.

The petition charges that the accident occurred at 5 a. m. near the intersection of Columbus and David streets and was caused by the failure of the company to have lights on the parked truck and the fact that the truck was parked too far from the curb. The petition also alleges that Bennett received severe cuts and bruises and it was necessary for him to spend $130 for medical treatment. The petition was filed by Attorney Hector S. Young.

Bennett was killed on the morning of Dec. 11. His brother Cyril confessed slaying him as he was returning from work. Cyril Bennett is now confined in the hospital for the criminally insane at Lima.

UNIFIED CONGRESS URGED BY AL SMITH

NEW YORK, May 17.—Calling upon congress to achieve a unified and other obstructive tactics, the interests of national reconstruction, Alfred E. Smith had a program for the alleviation of economic ills before the voters a day.

In a radio address last night he advocated a manufacturers' tax, restriction of veterans' legislation, an expanded program of federal public works, action on debts and modification of the prohibition laws.

The first duty of congress, he said, was to find means to balance the budget. To accomplish this he urged reduction of appropriations to an irreducible minimum and imposition of a manufacturing sales tax.

NEW OHIO TAX LAW UPHOLD BY COURT

Cincinnati Common Pleas Judge Refuses To Grant Woman Injunction.

CINCINNATI, O., May 17.—Ohio's new intangible tax law was upheld in its first court test today. Common Pleas Judge Alfred Black held it to be "not unreasonable and arbitrary or discriminatory," and not in violation of the Fourteenth amendment of the federal constitution.

In line with his opinion Judge Black refused to grant Mrs. Fanny Sarran Rowe of Cincinnati an injunction restraining the state tax commission and county officials from collecting the tax on her life interest in a trust established for her by her husband in Philadelphia, Pa.

Mrs. Rowe contended that the body of the trust consisted of stocks, bonds and other paper held by a trustee in Philadelphia; that none has ever been in Ohio; that none are obligations of Ohio corporations; an dthat to exact a tax on her $97,845 income in addition to taxes paid on the body of the trust in Pennsylvania constituted double taxation.

WHITE OFFERS PLAN TO END MINE STRIKE

Suggests 10-Point Program Including Recommendation for Year's Truce.

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—A 10-point program for settlement of the Ohio bituminous coal miners' strike which started in April was submitted to operators and miners today by Gov. George White. It included a recommendation for a truce of one year between the disputing parties.

Governor White suggested that the operators and miners declare the truce and reopen the mines immediately under a minimum wage scale of 38 cents a ton, for loading machine mined coal and $3.28 per day for motormen and other employees.

In his statement, which was mailed to all operators and officials of the miners' union, the executive said numerous conferences with the operators, miners and business men had caused him to propose the plan for a peaceful settlement of the controversy.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that the differences between these two parties (operators and miners) arise from the bitter feeling of distrust brought about by questionable practices in the past and I further feel that until such distrust is eliminated no final successful solution of the problem can be accomplished."

Governor White told the miners and operators that it was their "patriotic duty" to reopen the mines and to concede points in their controversy so that production may be resumed.

Tips on CONTRACT

PROFIT IN PASSING
By Tom O'Neil

At times the word "pass" is very profitable in contract. Particularly in this so when one has a hand worth an original bid or almost so and one's partner has made an informative double of an original bid by a vulnerable opponent.

Three honor tricks are ordinarily necessary for a takeout double. Realizing that the doubler's partner can readily decide from his own hand whether a profitable penalty is possible or whether a game contract is better.

The strength pass, instead of a bid of one's best suit in response to a double by partner, often adds greatly to one's score even when an opponent has made a bid of only one.

In illustration is a hand on which Miss Marie Brady passed at the Tower club, New York, and thereby caused vulnerable opponents to be penalized 1,400 points. She and partner could easily have won game themselves, but the greatest count possible would have been less.

North's opening bid of a no trump was justified. Had east overcalled with two spades east and west would have reached a successful game contract. But east doubled for a takeout. South passed. Now Mrs. Brady reflected. Her own holdings made her conclude that if her partner's double was sound south had no strength at all. She passed.

On a bid of one north and south took only three tricks, the are and queen of diamonds were set four doubled and vulnerable.

East, desiring the lead to come up to him, led a club in order to look the dummy over and get rid of the lead himself.

West took the first trick and immediately led her highest spade toward the weakness in dummy. The nine held the trick. Then the four of spades put east in to make four more spade tricks.

When spades were run out a lead of another club put west in to lead hearts through north's king. The last three tricks went to the declarer.

MARRIES WOMAN WHO SAVED HIS LIFE

Romance of West Revealed in Story from Colorado

By International News Service DENVER, Colo.—The recent marriage of Mrs. Lerora Camerer, 27, pretty bookkeeper and R. T. Stifel, 32, Eagle county Colo. rancher, revealed for the first time the thrilling story of a 23-day battle for Stifel's life in which the present Mrs. Stifel played the part of the heroine.

Stifel was sawing logs on his ranch when his clothing caught in the buzzsaw and he was carried into the teeth of the saw. Before it could be stopped his leg was almost severed.

Mrs. Camerer who was visiting at the Stifel ranch telephoned a neighbor 10 miles away to bring a physician to the ranch. With home antiseptics, hot water and in adequate instruments the physician aided by Mrs. Camerer set to work.

For four days and nights Mrs. Camerer nursed Stifel. Infection set in.

Single-handed Mrs. Camerer loaded Stifel onto a truck and drove down the rough mountain roads to McCoy Colo. two miles away where the patient was put on a train. Mrs. Camerer wired ahead to have an ambulance meet the train at Denver.

Denver physicians found that Stifel had a shin bone completely severed a bone injury at the knee and rapidly spreading infection.

For days Stifel hovered between life and death in a Denver hospital. When it was practically assured that he would recover a preacher was called in and Mrs. Camerer became Mrs. Stifel.

Do you inhale?

Certainly...

7 out of 10 smokers inhale knowingly...the other 3 inhale unknowingly

Do you inhale? Seven out of ten smokers know they do. The other three inhale without realizing it. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette.

Think, then, how important it is to be certain that your cigarette smoke is pure and clean—to be sure you don't inhale certain impurities!

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has dared to raise this much-avoided subject... because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? More than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes.

MINISTERIAL GROUP HEARS DR. JOHNSON

Delaware Man Speaks at Association's Last Meeting of Season

The Marion County Ministerial association closed its season of meetings yesterday at City library with a talk by Dr. J. Johnson of Delaware and a short business meeting.

The question of union meetings of the upstate churches is a subject which was brought up but not discussed. The union meeting, however, is in charge of Rev. J. Johnson of Delaware and a committee in the local church will be announced later.

Dr. Johnson gave the ministerial a colorful picture of his life in Delaware, explaining in detail the five years he spent in the state. He spoke of the severe drought which has afflicted the state and gave graphic pictures of the social and economic conditions in the country.

The ministerial will have a picnic in June. The arrangements are in charge of Rev. H. J. Maxwell of Grace Evangelical church, acting as chairman. The association will open its meetings in September.

STORK GIVES HART RELEASE FROM JAIL

Man Sentenced from Mt. Vernon Freed by Governor

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., May 11.—The stork has intervened to help rescue William F. Hart of Mt. Vernon from the Columbus workhouse.

Serving a term for assault and battery from Morrow county, Hart's sentence has been commuted by Governor White to expire at once.

Among other things considered by the governor in issuing the commutation was the fact that Hart's wife is about to become a mother for a third time.

WALDO PIG CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

Lowell Berrington has been named president of the Waldo #11 Pig club. It was announced by members of the club today. Other officers were: Paul Vogle, vice president; Earl Augusten, secretary and treasurer; Milton Smith, reception leader; William Fish, reporter; and Oscar Augusten, club leader. The club is the first of its kind in the town. The time for the next meeting was not definitely decided.

ANNOUNCE WEDDING OF GLADYS HINTON

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Gladys Hinton, daughter of Mrs. Beulah Hinton of near Mt. Victory and Ivan Dorsey of west of LaRue. The ceremony took place last Thursday at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. C. N. Brown east of LaRue. Witnessing the ceremony were the bride's mother, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Emma McNeal. The couple will make their home on a farm west of LaRue.

Lodge Meets—Routine business was transacted at the meeting of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus last night at Hotel Harding. A dinner preceded the meeting. The next meeting will be the third Monday in June.

SALARY DELAY TIPPED
By The Associated Press
TOLEDO, O., May 11.—Salaries of government employees here may be held up until July 1 due to fund shortage in the federal treasury. Federal Judge George T. Hahn announced.

FAVORS SWEDISH LIQUOR PLAN

John M. Morehead (right) United States minister to Sweden is shown as he told Senator J. E. Malone of Wisconsin of the practicality of government control of liquor as practiced in Sweden since the repeal of that country's prohibition laws. Morehead is a strong advocate of the Swedish plan and urged its adoption in his testimony before the senate judiciary committee.

AS "OLD GRANITE" VOTED

Carrying his 55 years like the soldier that he is, President Paul von Hindenburg of Germany is shown as he left a polling booth in Berlin after he had cast his vote in the recent election. Although the veteran president was elected by a big majority over Adolf Hitler, Hitler's party gained many more seats in the diet than they had ever held previously.

traveled last night but about $2000 was left in the school treasury. A plan to reopen a school in September is estimated that it will cost $20,000 to run the school. A system of raising money for the school is being planned. A petition which was placed in a throughout the state.

Petition Drawn Up

presented to the Hon. George B. Jones, a member of the general assembly of Ohio. Knowing that a progressive national integrity is a matter of individual happiness and well-being, we are parents, teachers, and citizens of Ohio, we insist that the state be permitted to cause this state to receive from its high schools of school facilities.

In most Ohio communities our school revenues are not sufficient to maintain the public schools. We respectfully and urgently call upon the executive of Ohio and members of the general assembly to meet this serious emergency with proper legislation before the beginning of the fall 1932 term of school.

It is suggested that the following proposals be considered—
1. Redistribution to local school districts of the existing cigarette tax.
2. Imposition of luxury or sales tax for school purposes.
3. Distribution of gasoline tax so that school districts may participate therein.

Emergency permission to borrow money for maintenance purposes.

AN INTELLIGENT ADULT
HISLER offers substantial prizes for the brightest smile in America. Send a snapshot and if yours is the brightest smile or if you are bright enough you get a prize. Joseph P. Day, New York's real estate king, should enter that contest. Anybody who can smile with real estate at its present level in Mr. Day was smiling recently deserves a prize. To be cheerful while conditions are pleasant in easy. It takes real character to smile through 1932.

AN ADMIRABLE old American ship builder, Capt. Dollar is dead in his eighty eighth year. Dead also is William H. Todd. One built ships on the Pacific coast, the other on the Atlantic. Capt. Dollar was an immigrant from Scotland. William H. Todd was the son of an Irish immigrant. The two men paid hundreds of millions to America labor each worked until the day of his death but both would be excluded from this country under present immigration laws that would keep out such men as have built this country.

HISTORIANS of the future who investigate original documents now prepared by the accountants for the estate of Kierger, Swedish match man with American fiancée, will find interesting facts. Kierger was able to get fifty million dollars here from financiers who had the slightest chance of making a cent.
Stocks that sold for a hundred dollars a share are worth perhaps a tenth of a cent. Guiltless American high finance got for its money an American match company so arranged that it could not make any money.
This country was certainly drunk with money and was taking dreams for reality in 1929. It is probably just as well that the nation woke up.

Special Session Votes
Creditors of Closed
State Banks.

The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., May 17—Approving recommendations of George White, the second session of the Ohio legislature enacted three bills of law yesterday and adopted without man-
dation, provide an amendment to the state banking laws to allow the state's banks in financial straits to borrow from the Finance corporation, pending their assets for the purpose of restoring the office building damaged
by fire, and a minor amendment to the unemployment relief law passed by the first session six weeks ago.

Emergency Acts
The measures were passed by emergency acts and become effective as they are signed by the governor, probably today.
The bills were enacted less than 24 hours after the assembly convened.

Working in the lower branch,
the legislature for issuance of not to exceed $200,000 of notes of indebtedness, maturing Dec. 31, 1934, and paying four per cent interest for the state office building
damaged only as a regular law requiring to obtain the required majority. Sent to the upper branch for an amendment to the emergency clause was passed as an amendment and passed by a vote of 90 to 5.
The money for repair of the exposed resulting from the explosion of April 14 in which 10 persons were killed will be raised under the limitation section of the provision and certificates will be issued from the general revenue
without additional tax levy.
Certificates are to be issued
as the money is needed.
The state superintendent of banks, liquidation agents and receivers for state banks are employed under the banking amendment to judge the assets of closed
banks for loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation or other sources so that dividends
be paid creditors and depositors of the closed banks reorganized and reopened. Kuhn as well large city banks will have the opportunity under the amendment. It was claimed, dependent on the value of their collateral,
the superintendent of banks
receivers and liquidation agents
state banks may proceed at once to seek loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation which has a fund of $200,000,000 for the purpose of closing banks throughout the nation.

Shadows in the Night

By CLYDE WELDON

WHEN John Minton had a put a job on a tennis-ball. In turn, regard for Phyllis. Then she blew problem to work out he invariably closed his office,
backed his car from the garage and drove to a quiet spot, where he could think without interruption.

Business mountains became molehills when he angled beside a rippling trout-stream. The pain once caused by the passing of a favorite terrier had been eased considerably
by his pipe and a cruise in a birch-bark canoe. In times of grief, regret and anxiety, John sought the luxury of solitude. Solitude helped, healed. This time it was a girl who perplexed him. Two girls, in fact.

Ever since John could remember
he had wooed and loved Phyllis Martin. They had trudged to school together as children, holding tight to each other's hand as they crossed the highway at a danger-point in the town square. Later, still inseparable, they attended football matches and high-school dances. John taught Phyllis to drive his car and how to other girls, in love with life and love, resented her scoffing and jeering.

The members of Harrison & Meade caught snatches of it, too. And, particularly so Jim Meade, whose work was entirely in Helen's hands. And,
being a close student of human nature, he often pondered over her complexities; her quiet, gentle beauty when absorbed with her work and forgetful of self, as contrasted with the hard, flintlike exterior she intentionally turned to the world; her soft, deep brown eyes, which gave the lie to the cynically drooping corners of her mouth.

It wasn't a mouth that had been intended for bitterness, as Jim Meade suddenly discovered one day
when he caught the red lips curved in one of Helen's rare smiles. Her mouth was intended for . . . but that was madness!

Not such madness, after all, on further thought! He was past 40, but she must be close to 30. They were both at an age when a draught
from the cup of love could bring supreme joy.

Jim Meade had learned his profession in a school of law; he had learned psychology in the school of life. And he instinctively knew that street, she crossed and walked with her eyes straight ahead, her little head held high. It wasn't ordinary disdain she affected; it was heartbreak, and John Minton knew it.

And because he was a man of conscience, he wished to do right by both girls. Perhaps a day of fasting, far from the hum of the town, would solve the problem for him.

It was one of those warm, sunny afternoons about which the poets rare, and when a mass of black and copper-tinted clouds appeared unexpectedly in the north. John was a trifle vexed. The fish were biting
well, and the low rumble of thunder, which persisted in announcing the coming of a storm, was most unwelcome. John was not afraid of elemental storms, but he was aware of the havoc they often wrought in these hill-bound valleys.

Suddenly the sun ceased to shine.
Bird life became very quiet. The brook was alive with pelting raindrops. John hastened to his car. Her lips were a slightly sadonic

smile and her eyes reflected jealousy and cynicism. Nevertheless, there was something fascinating about her,
and the lightning seemed to have her, playing across her features like a spotlight. How like Vivienne she was, like Vivienne and the storm!
An exceptionally sharp flash with its accompanying clap of thunder told John that some tree in the neighborhood had met with its destruction. The little house trembled, and through some coincidence, the girl's picture shuddered and fell to the floor.

John's nerves were getting "jammy." He was not a superstitious person, but the terrific storm, the unknown house and the picture now lying face down upon the floor were beginning to haunt him.

But the storm passed as abruptly as it had come. Sunlight poured in through the partly opened blinds, giving a wholesome, cheerful aspect to the room. As he prepared to leave, John noticed another picture on a table near the door. It was a picture of a girl in a ruddy blouse
and short, dark skirt. In one hand she held a tennis racket, in the other a ball, ready to be served to some racer opponent. Her lovely face but I guess I didn't use enough.

The School of Life

By JOELLA JOHNSON

he and Helen had at least one great bond in common. If he could only break down the barrier with which she had surrounded herself!

It took him the better part of a year to do it. He proceeded with infinite caution. First it was one of his favorite books, left with apparent carelessness on his desk. When he saw her looking with interest at the title, he offered her the loan of the book. She readily accepted it, and when she returned it he asked if she had enjoyed it. Soon they were launched upon a spirited discussion of its merits, and he was delighted with her keenness in discussing it.

He brought her other books, finding her a voracious reader. Gradually he sought for her other tastes;
he found that even her cynicisms
held an undertone of humor gone wrong. Daring much, he asked her to go with him to see a popular farce.
For a moment she hesitated, then impulsively assented.

At dinner he found her a charming companion, for, influenced by the in-eritable intimacy of a table for two,

she was less on guard than usual;
at the theater, she abandoned herself to the merriment of the play, and they laughed wholeheartedly together. But on the way home, when the close companionship of the ride was tempting him to try his luck, she unexpectedly withdrew into an icy reserve, and he felt rebuffed. He was too much in love, however, to accept defeat as final.

Weeks later they went together to hear a great violinist play. With theatrical notes, Helen forgot her surroundings; her entire being thrilled
in response to the exquisite music.
As the bow was drawn over the strings for the last time, she discovered that Jim's big hand was closely clasped over her own!

How long had they sat like that?
She hardly freed herself, but when ideals are, the greater the disaster
when they are swept away. Life hurt her, and you felt that your own desire for love was the instrument

by which you had been wounded. No yourself from me; I want your happiness even more than I want my own. Give me your love, and let's make a home together! You'll never regret it!"

Perhaps it was the longing in his eyes and the pressure of his arms;
perhaps it was her own craving, as old as Eve, for her mate; whatever the reason, Helen, giving way to the love that had been growing for months in her heart, suddenly cast aside her mantle of bitterness and cynicism, and responded with breath-taking sweetness to Jim's kisses.

Innocent Murderer—What's all this about, Sheriff?

Conscientious Sheriff—Do let me
show you the hang of it.

"And then both parents died and left me an orphan."

"Is that so? Whatever are you going to do with it?"

POPE PIUS, NEARING 75, IS DEAN OF SOVEREIGNS

Here is Pope Pius XI 50 years ago when he was plain Father Achille Ratti, but already distinguished for his talents as a scholarly librarian.
Then—

In 1921 he became cardinal archbishop of Milan. He took as his motto "repens transit,"
meaning "it passes rapidly."
This was prophetic, for—

Eight months later he was elected pope. And here he is as he appears today, rounding
out three-quarters of a century of an eventful life.

RIDERS TURN BACK TURF HISTORY.

VATICAN CITY—Pope Pius XI
becoming 75 years old on May 21, is the oldest reigning monarch in the world and yet the second newest one.

He became an independent sovereign by virtue of the Lateran treaty with Italy in 1929. Since then he has seen two royal changes in Europe, the ascension of Carol II in Rumania and Spain's dethronement of Alfonso XIII.

The other European monarchs compare with the Pope in age as follows:

Gustav V of Sweden .....	73
George V of England .....	66
Victor Emmanuel III of Italy .....	62
Christian X of Denmark .....	61
Haakon VII of Norway .....	59
Albert of Belgium .....	57
Wilhelmina of Holland .....	51
Alexander I of Yugoslavia .....	43
Zog I of Albania .....	35
Carol II of Rumania .....	34
Boris III of Bulgaria .....	33

Emperor Hirohito of Japan is only 21 and other Asiatic monarchs do not approach the Pope in age. Neither do King Fuad of Egypt nor other African potentates.

Although dean of the monarchs,
the Pope is as hearty as any of them. King George of England could ride a horse better, and King Haakon
of Norway could hunt better, but Pius XI could give any one of them, except Albert of Belgium, a handicap of a couple of pounds and beat him climbing a mountain.

Such quarter century of Pius XI's life has ended in a year important to him. When he was 55 years old he came to Rome and was elected to begin his life as Pope Pius XI.

She thinks her breath
is pleasant.... because her mouth is clean!

NOT HERE
AT ALL
REALLY IT'S INTERNAL

Use a mouthwash—yes! It purifies your mouth. But don't be too sure about your breath!
Bad Breath, more often than not, is from deep inside you.

To end it, underlying causes
must be removed. The digestive system must be kept clear, regular, fit to function normally. Sweep away constipation—eliminate the poisons that are sapping strength and energy—and you defeat Bad Breath at one and the same time!

Here is the way to do it—
with the saline treatment that has proved its work and effectiveness time after time.

For gentle, thorough, punctual relief of constipation—
use Sal Hepatica. There's no unpleasant over-purging, no distressing violence, with this easy saline. It is not at all like an ordinary laxative.

Sal Hepatica is the American equivalent of the spas of Europe. Its properties give you the same benefits that draw thousands every season
to Carlsbad, Aix, and Wiesbaden. For Sal Hepatica, is purifying the system, checks
constipation, headache, indigestion, rheumatism. It checks intoxication, bad complexion
and acidity.

Start tomorrow morning with Sal Hepatica. Just pour a teaspoonful or so in a glass of cold water. When it effervesces, drink it down! You'll clear your blood and clear your breath, too, with this lasting, heavenly of healthy men and women! Go out and get a bottle today.

Make Cleanup Week a Success.

This is the week officially designated by the mayor of Marion for the annual city-wide cleanup.
By this the mayor and those associated with him in the project do not mean that Marion should be careless of its appearance during the remainder of the year. What is more, Marion would not follow a program of that sort. It always has borne the reputation of being one of the cleanest and most attractive cities in Ohio and that is a reputation worth retaining.
A definite and intensive campaign such as the one set down for this week is essential in the spring, however, to put finishing touches on the work that goes on through the rest of the year. Experience in the past has proved its effectiveness.
It does not get satisfactory results, though, unless all citizens enter into the project wholeheartedly. There is every indication that general cooperation is certain this week. This is only the second day, but activities throughout the city show progress already.
The city service department, despite limited funds, is providing excellent hauling facilities at a minimum cost, and for those unemployed and unable to pay, is providing the service in exchange for labor. Many of the unemployed have accepted the offer and for doing so they deserve praise and expression of appreciation. If there are any citizens who are financially able to do their share in the cleanup and fail, certainly they make a poor showing in comparison with those who lack funds but are willing to work for the good of their community.
Those who have the advantage of income should use this occasion, not only to join in the cleanup campaign, but to hire jobless men and women, wherever possible, to help with the work.

Mayor Jimmy Walker stepped along in sprightly fashion at the head of his beer parade, in fact just as though there might be a stein or two waiting at the end of the route.

Reserve Power.

Existence of reserve power in the people's government is an American credo. That a crisis will call forth degrees of cooperation and stores of common sense saved up for emergencies is the common belief. What substantiation is there for such a comforting idea?
To answer the question, it is necessary first of all to define a national crisis; specifically, to determine whether or not the United States government is at a crisis now. It is not difficult to do. If a general belief that the government's continued power depends on its present action be a crisis, this is a crisis. President Hoover has judged it to be so; public opinion preceded him in announcement of the same conviction.
However, instead of recognizing that it is time to release some of its reserve power, meaning the common sense and cooperation which ordinarily are kept in the background while the human element of government plays for political advantage, the federal government has added to the enormity of the people's conception of the danger by seeming to ignore it. Congress has failed to grasp the people fear, that confidence depends on a balanced budget—a balance to be achieved through wholesale reduction of the cost of government and such tax increases as may be necessary.
The congressional conception has been the reverse of this—wholesale increase of taxation and such federal economies as can be made without hurting the departments and bureaus. Optimists have assumed that a crisis such as exists at this time would be sufficiently frightening to cause legislators to forget partisan politics and their own relatively unimportant needs. Nothing has happened yet to give evidence that their faith is anything but Pollyanna cheerfulness on the brink of certain disaster. Government never has been regarded with less faith than now.

It is darkest before the dawn. It's past time for congress to flash some of its vaunted reserve power before the worried eyes of a nation that is wondering if it has been comforting itself with a myth. Is cooperation possible? Is common sense possible? A vast deal depends on the answer which congress gives before its adjournment.
Style authorities in different cities seem to lack agreement on just what should be the exact date for straw hat day, and the weather man also frequently has ideas of his own.

When former King Alfonso arrived in a European city and was greeted with a series of whams on the jaw by a presumably unfriendly one-man reception committee, he must have formed a faint suspicion that the movement for restoration of the monarchy is not gaining ground.

Health and Happiness.

Questions of utmost importance to human welfare and happiness are to be discussed by experts here within the next two days. The discussions will relate to health, mind and physical problems.
Many of the subjects announced in the two-day program of the Ohio State Eclectic Medical association, which is holding its sixtieth annual convention in Marion, are in scientific terms, rather mysterious to the understanding of the average person, but all are of decided value and significance to every body.

Every paper that is read, every talk given, in this convention will be a contribution to longer and happier lives for residents of Ohio, where members of the Medical association practice their profession.

Business men's organizations meet to exchange views on commercial and economic ailments and suggested remedies, and that is important. Even with good health, the people of a state or nation can not get all that they should out of life if all business denies them adequate income.

But the need of perfect physical functions is absolutely paramount. Even during a period of what we call depression from lack of a better term, strength and vigor of mind and body make enjoyment possible. And without this possession, the greatest of prosperity is worth nothing.

So it can be said in all truth and sincerity that this convention of Ohio physicians, held to discuss methods of adding to health safeguards and improving methods of treatment and cure, is one of the most important assemblies held here in a long time. Marion may regard it as a mark of distinction to have been selected as the Ohio State Eclectic Medical association's convention city this year.

Three thousand carrier pigeons released here flew directly to their destination in Cleveland, showing better judgment than many presumably intelligent human beings who flounder and wander aimlessly and never arrive at the right place.

Meeting Adjourned.

Americans who have been led to suspect by the antics of congress that representative government is effective in direct proportion to the strength of its leaders, and not in proportion to the freedom of speech and action prevailing, have been watching the German reichstag with interest. It is called into session rarely and adjourned at will. Thursday, after some disorder by a quartet of Hitlerites, it was adjourned again, without ceremony.
It is a high-handed method, but it is working. For the present, Germany is having a republic by sufferance of the people, who have confidence enough in their administration to allow them to act directly, without benefit of action by the legislative branch. In other words, Germany is operating under dictatorship by consent. The reichstag is there, but it isn't safe to use.

It is a reminder, and an unpleasant one, that democratic government in the United States is not immune to the same disease. Any congress which shows itself incapable, or at least unwilling, as the present congress has shown itself to legislate in the interests of broad public welfare invites the charge of parliamentary ineptitude. A few more sessions like the present one and popular confidence might become so shaken that drastic changes would be necessary.

It is a possibility, however, and not a probability. Better in popular government is rooted firmly in the American mind. Compared with Germany, which started its republican experiment under the most unfavorable conditions imaginable, the United States has boundless faith in its ability to overcome the evils which beset it in the way of breakdowns in the representative system. One thing is obvious, however. Some kind of central control of the people's representatives is imperative. Such control, present in preceding congresses, has largely disappeared in the present one.

The usual waiting list of fliers is lined up for attempts at aerial ventures across sea and everybody wishes them the best of luck, but they can't depend too much on expecting the courageous Captain Fied to be conveniently located should they find it necessary to come down in mid-ocean.

Third Special Session.

The general assembly will hold a third special session some time before the November elections, Governor White announces, to consider the matter of salary adjustments. A large share of the state's legislative business this year is being conducted through use of this emergency device.

First it was emergency relief legislation that demanded the presence of the assembly men at Columbus. This week their attention is devoted to amendments to state banking laws to permit state banks to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Adjustment of salaries to meet the times will be the next piece of business to be transacted by the 89th assembly.

Salary adjustments were discussed unofficially at the first special session last March, but action could not be taken due to the restriction which makes it impossible for the legislative body to act upon anything not included in the governor's instructions at such a time. Governor White promised to consider salaries at a later date—after the primaries.

Assemblymen can reflect gravely that they are having an opportunity in this assembly to serve their state fully. They get transportation expenses to and from the capital, but the rest of the treat is on them. There is little danger of a protracted meeting. In consequence of the arrangement, it's possible that some of them are hoping that, if there are to be more special sessions after this one, the governor will arrange to have them on consecutive days.
In the meantime, there are those who are beginning to wonder why, when the necessity for salary adjustments has been apparent for the last year, the matter couldn't have been handled in such a way as to have avoided incurring the expense of reconvening the assembly the third time.

Editorial Opinion.

VENGEANCE AND THE CRIMINAL.
Thomas Rice, associate editor of the Panel publication of the New York Grand Jurors' association, contributing to the Brooklyn Eagle some remarks deserving attention as to the recent lynching in Kansas of a confessed rapist and murderer. Mr. Rice was a member of the New York state crime commission during its five years' existence and does not speak without information and reflection. He suggests that the Kansas lynching was given less newspaper attention than such events have received in the past because editors thought, probably 80 per cent of their readers thought, the lynching was justifiable. In view of the Lindbergh case and other crimes of somewhat similar nature, And he points out that Kansas has no capital punishment, the only penalty that could satisfy the moral sense of the people in this case. Therefore the people took justice into their own hands, as they will do when lawful procedure is inadequate.

We believe Mr. Rice is sound in his opinion that lynching or private justice will increase at least as to extreme crimes, if the necessity of law do not satisfy the normal sense of the community, as they often do not. And we share his disapproval with the constant pressure of professional humanitarians to mitigate punishment, even of violent crimes by one means or another.
This tendency is justified on the theory that the element of vengeance must be strictly excluded from the consideration of legal penalty. The theory regards the criminal and his act as an isolated thing, the object of our attention to lawful living as the object of our attention. Humanitarians, associated, are preoccupied with restoration and the happy outcome rather involved in favor of that happy outcome rather than in favor of the safety of possible victims. They are concerned with the offender's future consideration in the salvage of community from the consequences of mistaken judgment.

From this point of view indignation toward the criminal and pity for his victim are irrelevant and subversive. This indulgent, persistent attitude for those who have not suffered at a criminal's hands. It is also a subversive of security in an extent not compensated by the direction of individual salvage action in the direction of the latter objective is demerit but should be pursued with more regard to the former, which is or ought to be the prime consideration of penal procedure.

Mr. Rice says:
"The statute law is a substitute accepted by the community in the place of the right of vengeance. When a criminologist or penalologist preaches that the element of vengeance must not enter into the enforcement of the criminal law he is going against human nature and he is encouraging lynch law and private vengeance."
The answer we throw aside the sanctimonious paying out administering the injured law with no thought of giving the injured person a substitute for his private vengeance the longer we will preserve the community from an outbreak of lynch law that will be a bitter tragedy.

Italy Encourages Aviation.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
Rome, May 17.—Special brevets for pilots of aircraft other than those fitted with engines will be issued to Italian fliers hereafter. The ordinary pilot's brevet is neither necessary nor valid for the new kind of airplanes which do not use engine power.
Following this decision taken at a recent cabinet council, General Balbo, Italian air minister, has issued orders for special examinations. All airplanes not propelled by engines must henceforth be known as "aeromobiles," must henceforth be issued except to brevet holders.

Loudspeakers for St. Peter's Basilica and airplanes for missionaries are the latest innovations in connection with Pope Pius' 11th activities.
St. Peter's is now fitted with microphones and 10 loudspeakers which will be used whenever the Pope appears at mass there, or delivers a message. They will also be used during the services attended by large numbers of pilgrims.

Senator Marconi, of wireless fame, has seen that the best electro-dynamic apparatus has been put up in various parts of the building. There are eight inside and two in the portico, 51 feet above floor level. They are linked up with the papal wireless station, also in the Pontiff's sovereign state.

The Pope is encouraging the use of aeroplanes in far distant mission fields. Monsignor Gelpi, apostolic delegate in the Belgian Congo, always visits his missions in a Junker and in East Africa, there are others. The one in Hudson Bay is fitted with skis for winter work and the Society of Jesus has a fine hydroplane of its own for the same district.
"Use aeroplanes, so you can come and see me more often," the Pope tells his missionaries from China, and other remote parts of the earth.

Striking proof of the improved status of the Italian peasant and city toiler is given by the latest returns for the sale of common salt, which is a government monopoly. In the past 50 years its sale has grown by 60 per cent. Inasmuch as the population of Italy has increased 44 per cent since then, that leaves an increased sale of 36 per cent.

Before Italy was an independent and united state, that is, previous to 1870, salt was too dear for the mass of the impoverished toilers to buy. Its scarceness on the tables in most homes caused many diseases, which have now almost entirely disappeared.
The Italian state gets an income of nearly $28,000,000 from the sale of salt and Mussolini is now studying a scheme for the preparation of a fine kind of table salt for export.

A Mob at a Shaker Village.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH
On Monday, Aug. 27, 1910, a mob of about 500 persons assembled at Union village, Warren county, determined to break up the Shaker community located there, or compel the Shakers to change their practices. It was due to serious reports concerning the religious rites of the organization, spread by a number of persons who had been members of it but were dismissed for violation of rules.

Some of the members of the mob were militiamen, wearing the uniforms of their companies and bearing arms, and most of the others were armed in some way; and it was due to the equality of the leaders of the Shakers under great pressure of the religious efforts of a few members of the community who were friendly to them, that violence should have been fully determined to use should occasion require, was not reported to.

The mob had selected a committee of 12 to present the ultimatum to the Shakers and their reply. The 12 would not meet the Shakers in their village but insisted on a conference in the woods near by. By 2 o'clock force in the village was assured by the p. m. this committee that they would abandon certain practices, or agree to leave the neighborhood or be driven out.

The Shakers called in Judge Dunlavy, Squire J. Corwin and General Schenck, all of Warren county, to advise with them. These judicious men arranged to have any members of the community who according to the reports they had heard had been victims of objectionable practices of the Shakers, brought before the committee of 12 and questioned regarding the matters. All confessions of the mob, had increased the number of reports of the incident, written by Benjamin Seth Young a member of the Shaker community, who closes his account with these words: "No ground of accusation being found or reported to the party, and the generally being wearied and perplexed with the same, and under mortifying disappointment, were dismissed, the last of them disappearing over the horizon as the darkness of night began to creep over the horizon, without leaving behind them any visible marks of cruelty."

New York Day by Day.

BY G. O. MINTYRE
New York, May 17.—Greenwich village is becoming "villagier" again. The unwanted returning to the streets. During boom years the New York Latin Quarter was thronged with absorption by the nouveau riche. A sudden apartment house grandeur spread over Washington Arch.

Many tea rooms and waffle shops that were the Shinto Shrine of long-haired thinners are back in circulation. Mama Berdion's, packed to capacity. The speakies dealers by the tug of de luxe uplows spots are doing brisk trade.
If some of the odd characters returned to Village would be little different from 15 years ago. Characters such as tiny Tim, the bookie of "soul candy," Guido Bruno, the bookie of "bobby Edwards," and his cigar box "Sonia," the cigarette girl philosopher, and many more.

Many lazing along sidewalk cafes of No-man-land are back to the old haunts. They are wretched among the expatriates of there. The sustenance provided caddis for tourists has dried up. Paris's Left bank is bleak since the war.
Staunch defenders of the Village hope a renaissance will not result in the usual commercial exploitation by pseudo-artists. They gave the town its atmosphere of artistic sham. They believe it should be a rare devotion for the creative.

High rents forced much of the village section when the world was on the up and up. Carrots once renting for $25 a month were ballooned to $150 and $200. It became "smart" to don smocks. Grecian robes, a sandale chant free verse canticles and luxuries in the despairing glow of sputtering candles.
Today rents are not back to the old figure but they are near them. The Village with its ways be the target for jeers. But the truth is, it has been the generating ground for many of America's foremost artists and novelists. Sinclair Lewis, Eugene O'Neill, Frederic M. Monahan and Theodore Dreiser to name a few.

This morning I groped about the dim and natural euphonia of a theater for a seat to rehearsal. No place I know is so spooky when deserted or so lively in action. After a while the abysmal blur for a long time I heard a far-away hollow cough. It was a shifter showing up for work, but such was the nervous tension, I found myself knocking for the door, whistling off key in feigned bravado.

About the only Broadway restaurant "back 'em in" during the universal dullness of the Hollywood, the flamboyantly gay spot, a floor show sponsored by the lanky N. T. G. A. Cabaret nudism recalls the puritanism in town and the surprising latitude today. T. official bill poster was sent post haste by a caged citizenry to paste a blank white over a line in the three-sheets of the Rock of Monty Carlo Girls. It read "Parisian in Can."

It was Al Moasburg who, during a dull of night at the Friars, yawned and exclaimed: "Let's get an old sweater, a pair of pants and go roughing it for a couple of weeks in Jay C. Filippen's hair."

I joined the ladies' after-dinner party in evening after spelling out a word before sudden release of a flood of balloons from the ceiling. It will usually keep customers for another hour. Another hour and they remain for closing.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, May 17.—If there had been a doubt as to where control in the house or representatives lies in this congress, then it would have been dispelled during consideration of the proposed economy bill.

It doesn't rest in the hands of "Happy Jack" Garner despite the Democratic majority and the fact that he presides as speaker. The can be put down as fairly certain.
It must be evident to every one now that those in the saddle and holding the reins of the bloc—made up of both Democrats and Republicans.

Consider what happened with the economy plan. Every day saw an attack on some point. Even members of the economy committee were at odds on some of the items in the bill. The result was that the bill traveled an exceedingly rocky road and emerged scarcely recognizable.

It was a different situation than that which prevailed during the fight on the recent revenue bill. Then it was easy to pick out the leaders for and against.
Speaker Garner endorsed the bill, and Georgia, acting chairman of ways and means brought it onto the floor and offered legislation by section. Democratic Leader Clegg threw his strength solidly behind it.

Republican Leader Snell and his right man, Michener of Michigan, did what they could to muster strength in support.
It was easy to single out the general on the opposing side. LaGuardia of New York, a Republican, was the chief of the anti-aides were Douglas of North Carolina and Rankin of Mississippi.

But with such a high command there was no doubt of defeat, almost there was as many Democrats voting against it as Republicans.
With the economy bill there was a total absence of such high leadership. The speaker and the Republican floor leader agreed to a rule to expedite the measure, but Democrats and Republicans alike howled their dissent. Most of the section limiting amendments were vetoed to strike it out.

McDuffie of Alabama, chairman of the committee, and the youthful Lou Douglas of Arizona bore the brunt of the attack. The McDuffie was terrible. He lost his voice almost completely before the battle was over. Millions were whittled away from the final proposal daily, as the two sat by helplessly.

For the bloc were in control.
